A Combat Report from the "Magnificent Bastards"

The 2d Bn, 4th Marine Regiment, as part of the coalition forces is assigned to maintain security in the Iraqi city of Ramadi. This is a Sunni-dominated city of 350,000 located on the Euphrates river about 30 miles west of Fallujah. The Marines conducted security patrols which were generally quiet with no open warfare until about the 6th of April. Suddenly, the patrolling Marines were slammed by M-16s, heavy machine guns, rocket-propelled grenades and mortars. The coalition forces responded with massive fire, armor and air support. At one point, Marines fought house-to-house, some even leaping from one rooftop to the next as they chased and caught some of the insurgents. This e-mail from LtCol Paul Kennedy, the Battalion Commander to the wives of the battalion was sent about the 11th of April and provides an insight worth sharing:

Dear Ladies, The last two days have been the hardest two days this battalion has faced in over 30 years. Within the blink of an eye the situation went from relatively calm to a raging storm. You've known that since arriving there has been violence; attacks have been sporadic and mostly limited to roadside bombs. Your husbands have become experts at recognizing those threats and neutralizing them before we were injured. Up to this point the war has been the purview of corporals and sergeants, and the squads they lead.

Yesterday the enemy upped the ante. Early in the morning we exchanged gunfire with a group of insurgents without significant loss. As morning progressed, the enemy fed more men into the fight and we responded with stronger force. Unfortunately, this led to injuries as our Marines and Sailors started clearing the city block by block. The enemy did not run; they fought us like soldiers. And we destroyed the enemy like only Marines can. By the end of the evening the local hospital was so full of their dead and wounded that they ran out of space to put them. Your husbands were awesome. All night they stayed at the job of securing streets and nobody challenged them as the hours wore on. They did not surrender one inch nor did they flinch from the next potential threat. Previous to yesterday the terrorists thought we were soft enough to challenge. As of tonight the message is loud and clear that the Marines will not be beaten.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE
by Commander Jack Miller, USN (Retired)

This issue covers two months so plan on receiving your next Chapter newsletter about 1 July. Some key events to mark on your calendar – 18 June, the Sunset Sail. Judith negotiated a bargain price of $40.00, so sign up early for this one. 16 July a luncheon function with speaker at MCBH Officer's club. 8 August, the annual picnic at Bellows AFS.

The Chapter has adopted a Forward Artillery Detachment as part of the Adopt-A-Platoon program. The 37 man unit is operating outside Kirkuk, Iraq. The unit must be busy with combat for we have heard very little feedback about their needs. Staying alive and doing their job is top priority which we all can understand and appreciate. Please see the notice from Roxy on Page 5. All Chapter members are encouraged to help.

The Storming the Hill by MOAA delegates from all 50 states and Puerto Rico on 25 March was a single focus effort to persuade Congress to eliminate the survivors Benefit Plan drop at age 62 from 55% to 35%. There are 1500 Military Widows in the State of Hawaii this year that will get a benefits increase if it goes through. On 15 April, MOAA President Admiral Ryan, met with President Bush and discussed the inequity of the SBP "widow's tax" with the President. I feel that our case has been well presented but please keep the pressure on the Hawaii delegation to stay the course until there is Congressional approval for funding.

MOAA Vacations (toll free number 800-211-5107 - website www.MOAAvacations.com) offers bargain priced last minute deals on cruises. This is a worthwhile place to shop if you are available for short notice trips. The key word is to look for the Military discount price.

Aloha, Jack

A SPECIAL INVITATION TO LUNCH on May 21st, Marine Corps Base Hawaii Officers Club, Kaneohe: All Chapter members are cordially invited to the scenic Legarie Room for lunch and to hear an update on MOAA activities by Col. Chris Giaimo, USAF-Ret. Director, Council and Chapter Affairs MOAA National Headquarters. The lunch will be pay individually and you may order off the menu or enjoy the buffet. Lunch starts at 1130 hours followed by a short business meeting of the Board of Directors and the Executive Committee. We plan that Colonel Giaimo will speak at about 1315 hours. If you plan to attend please advise Jack Miller by phone 261-4100 or e-mail carita@pixi.com.

★ "Magnificent Bastards" (Continued from Page 1) ★ Today the enemy started all over again, although with far fewer numbers, only now the rest of the battalion joined the fight. Without elaborating too much, Weapons Company and Golf Company crushed their attackers with the vengeance of the righteous. They filled up the hospitals again and we suffered only a few injuries. Echo Company dominated the previous day's battlefield. Fox Company patrolled with confidence and authority; nobody challenged them. Even Headquarters Company manned their stations and counted far fewer people openly watching us with disdain. If the enemy is foolish enough to try to take on your men again they will not survive contact. We are here to win.	★ The news looks grim from back in the States. We did take losses that, in our hearts, we will always live with. The men we lost were taken within the very opening minutes of the violence. They could not have foreseen the treachery of the enemy and they did not suffer. We can never replace these Marines and Sailors but they will fight on with us in spirit. We are not feeling sorry for ourselves nor do we fear what tomorrow will bring. The battalion has lived up to its reputation as "Magnificent Bastards." ★ Yesterday made everyone here stronger and wiser; it will be a cold day in Hell before we are taken for granted again. ★ (Signed) Paul Kennedy and Jim Booker

Thinning of the Ranks

Penny Penterman died of stomach cancer on 29 March and was buried at the State Veterans Cemetery on 7 April. Penny was an auxiliary member and a regular member of the Chapter Bridge Group.

Binnacle List

We wish a speedy recovery to our sick:

Lillian Vasey is undergoing chemotherapy at the Arcadia Retirement Residences.

Nancy Callahan is recovering from hip surgery at the Rehab Hospital of the Pacific.

Bill McGarry is recovering from a stroke at the Aloha Nursing and Rehabilitation Center in Kaneohe.

Are You Enrolled in TAMC TRICARE PLUS?

Unofficial, but worthy of passing on is the following tidbit picked up at a recent TAMC TRICARE Hawaii Regional Beneficiary Advisory Council/Health Consumer Committee meeting: A reminder that those who are in the TRICARE PLUS Program are to see their Primary Care Physician at least once a year. This is one of the ways the program can confirm your continued interest as a member of the program. TAMC resources have been strained to provide services since many medical staff have been ordered to support deployments to Afghanistan and Iraq. Thus, those patients who fail to check in with their Primary Care Physicians may find themselves being dropped from the program. (PAC, Bruce Smith)

BRIDGE CORNER by Robbie Gee

They say that March comes in like a lion and goes out like a lamb, but you'd never have known it at the MOAA Party Bridge Group, hosted by Wally Barker and bridge partner Beverly Willms at Bob and Robbie Gee's condo at The Esplanade in Hawaii Kai on Saturday, 27 March 2004. There were some rip-roaring scores and the winner for the evening was no less than Les Ihara, who was joined by his wife, Shirley, in second place. Robbie Gee took third place, and the "booby" prize winner shall remain nameless.

Also striving to be "lion tamers" were members Robbie Gee, John and Joan Peters, Judith Breitwieser, Marian Davis, Bud and Peg Hurless, hosts Wally Barker and Beverly Willms, and Doris Rechsteiner.

Remember to call me at 255-4558 not later than the weekend beforehand to reserve your seat at the bridge table. Nonsmoking players of all abilities are welcome with or without a partner. This is a FUN bunch who enjoy another opportunity to socialize with their TROA/MOAA friends and who don't take their bridge too seriously! The group usually meets on the last Saturday of the month at 7pm at various locations around the island on a rotation basis, but watch your Pau Hana Koa each month for the dates, as exceptions do occur.

Giving a Gift That Counts by Captain Rico Tudor, USN (Retired)

How many times do you open an item in the mail asking you to give to a worthy cause? I think we would all like to make a donation, but there are our daily budgets to look after and then, of course, there are questions about the background of the charity that made the request. But, I am sure each one of us would respond to a charitable request that requires no out of pocket costs and only forty-five minutes of our time. Further, if that gift was assured of saving possibly three lives and making lives less fortunate than our own whole and healthy again, we would make an immediate donation. There is such a gift and that gift is the donation of blood.

independent donor system apart from the military. I also learned that Tripler can only accept blood donations from federal government employees and military ID holders.

For that reason I now find my donation every two months going to Tripler Blood Donor Center and I hope we can encourage other MOAA members to do the same. We have set up a special register at Tripler to record the number of donations that our members give and if you arrive at the blood donation center and advise them you are a member of the MOAA your name will be placed on the register.

The donation of blood knows no upper age limits and right now our military Blood Donor Center at Tripler Hospital is facing a crisis. Why? Because most of the Tripler blood donors have been mobilized and now find themselves in Iraq or Afghanistan. These same donors also find out when they return because of their deployment conditions that they will be unable to donate blood for up to three years.

To get to the Donation Center go to the ocean side elevators of Tripler Hospital, get off at the 2nd floor, and walk straight ahead under the EXIT sign to Room 2A 207. You will find LTC Karen Burmeister, Mary Talon, Rachael Duran and Bernard Cockerham ready to assist you and will take down simple information. The actual donation process takes less than 10 minutes and you are up and ready to go after having a nice juice replacement drink and some cookies to replace that precious pint donation. The Tripler Blood Donation Center number is 433-6195/6148. Your donation is a gift that takes less than an hour of time out of your day and a "gift of life" that will bring true satisfaction to your soul. Lets make MOAA an important part of our support to the Blood Bank of Hawaii is a separate and military community by these donations.

I did not think much about the Tripler Blood Donor Center until a well informed friend apprised me of the current situation. I also learned that the Blood Bank of Hawaii which I have been giving to religiously over the years does not routinely ship in blood to the military facility and that the Blood Bank of Hawaii is a separate and

TUG by Colonel Lou Torraca, USAF (Retired)

This month, as promised, I will tell you a bit about my beta testing of Windows XP SP2 (that's service pack 2). I'm not sure how MS intends to distribute this, but I am relatively sure it will be a free fix, except perhaps, for a small fee if you want a CD as opposed to a download. This might be well worth it, even for those with a fast (Cable, DSL, etc.) connection, the SP2 release candidate I'm now running is very, very big! There are lots of improvements in this SP. It's almost a whole new OS, but not to worry, it is meant to be an update, so you should be able to keep everything you now have, but don't forget, just in case, to do a backup before installing it! MS is aiming for early summer to release this, so it should be available soon.

The main changes in this SP involve automatic updates, windows firewall, wireless networking controls, and a pop-up blocker for Internet Explorer

Full-Automatic Updates— With the beta of Windows XP SP2, Microsoft is also testing Version 5 of its automatic update. The first screen you see after installing SP2 and rebooting is a blue warning page that asks you to turn on Automatic Updates. You have two choices:

1. Yes, help me protect my PC by automatically downloading and installing updates (strongly recommended)
2. Ask me again later.

The properties screen that controls Automatic Updates settings has been changed. There are now four radio button options (it's really the same number of options presented differently), and the first is the most automatic option; the same one that Microsoft calls "strongly recommended." In general the changes to Automatic Updates are a good idea.

Workable Windows Firewall— What used to be called Internet Connection Firewall has been upgraded and rechristened "Windows Firewall." There are several minor changes, but the biggest and best change is that, according to Microsoft, XP's firewall should work much better with applications. In part, that should be brought about by the new default "On" setting that's something like a medium level of protection. There's also an "On with no exceptions" setting that provides a high security level (similar to the only level of security provided by default in Internet Connection Firewall). This works a lot like zone alarm but is a lot easier to setup!

Easier Wireless Networking? — Since most of you are not into wireless the 802.xx protocols, I will skip this aspect, except to say another type of wireless, Bluetooth, also receives an update with SP2. Microsoft says the point of the update is to provide support for a wider range of the latest Bluetooth devices, including wireless keyboards, mice, and connections with cell phones and PDAs, which I know some of you have.

Security— There are some significant areas of security improvement that are invisible in SP2, but they represent some of the more important changes. Windows Messenger Service, the network messaging feature (not to be confused with Windows Messenger, the instant-messaging client), is turned off by default in SP2. The Windows Messenger Service has been the target of spam pop-ups for more than a year. More recently, it has been identified as a possible area of exploit by hackers and malware. The window that you use to block pop-ups has several choices and allows you to also list pages you want to allow pop-ups on. This feature has worked very well for me during the testing.

If you use Outlook Express or Windows Messenger instant-messaging client, MS is implementing some security fixes in these products. File attachments to emails or files passed with Windows Messenger will be looked at a lot closer by default. Attachments will only be able to open and execute after you are queried in detail. OE will also no longer download external content (such as graphics) in HTML mail by default — so the preview window won't be such a gotcha area. Additionally, Windows XP SP2 will deliver the latest versions of Windows Media Player 9 and DirectX 9.0b, both of which have numerous security tweaks.

Some functionality is still being added to this very big service pack release, but a lot of it is in place. SP2 is kinda like Microsoft's response to the MS Blaster worm. More and more PC users have always-on broadband connections, and leaving their PCs on. Many of those PCs may not be protected well enough. Microsoft is taking the lead to ensure that users are protected with a built-in firewall and automatic updates. Given that worms and Trojans not only infect unprotected PCs, but use them as staging areas to infect other PCs, this is an important step for Microsoft to take. Of course, some may feel that MS is playing big brother again, but only until the first virus gets them!

All in all, SP2 is a pretty solid, stable set of improvements and everything about it is aimed at "security."

Finally, here's a tip for you "frequent shippers"...I would credit the source, but unfortunately forgot to copy it when I saved the tip! Have you ever dropped off a package at FedEx and wondered if you could have gotten a better deal at UPS or the U.S. Post Office? Those businesses do post their prices on the Internet, but you have to surf to each Web site and note the prices. You can stop surfing, because everything is consolidated at the Intershipper Quick Quote. Enter the weight, your ZIP code and the destination ZIP code. You'll receive a list of vendors and prices. You can also compare the differences in prices between standard and priority overnight, two-day, three-day and ground. TO VISIT THIS SITE, GO HERE: <http://www.intershipper.com/Shipping/Intershipper/Website/MainPage.jsp>

That's it for now. Until next time, happy computing. Come see us at one of our upcoming meetings; visit: www.the_tug.homestead.com for schedules and driving directions. lou

CONCURRENT RECEIPT

Captain Jerry Lesperance, USCG (Retired)

SOME DEFINITIONS: Starting about 1999 "Concurrent Receipt" referred to programs that would allow 20-year retirees receiving VA disability compensation to be able to receive their full military retired pay AND the VA disability compensation. Several years ago the term "Concurrent Receipt" began to be used to identify a specific program relating to a 20-year or more retiree with a 50% or greater combined VA disability rating regardless whether the disability was "combat-related" or not. Recently DOD started calling this program "Concurrent Retirement and Disability Payments (CRDP)" which is the term that will be used in this article.

A separate program came on board shortly after the CRDP was established. This program is called "Combat-Related Special Compensation (CRSC). It superceded an earlier program called "Special Compensation for Severely Disabled Retirees (SCSD) because CRDP has more generous payments. A retiree cannot receive CRDP as well as CRSC.

CRDP: On 2 February 2004 CRDP payment was made by DOD to nearly 150,000 qualified 20-year or greater retirees who had a combined VA disability rating of at least 50%. Payments to apparently eligible retirees who have significant complications in their retiree accounts (such as former spouse divisions or those who receive retired pay based on the extent of their disability as opposed to their length of service.) may be delayed until their account can be manually reviewed, but the payments will be retroactive. Applications for CRDP are neither required nor accepted. However retirees who have not yet received payment by 1 April 2004, but believe they are qualified, should contact their Military Department or DFAS to determine the reason for non-payment. CRDP benefits are taxable.

CRSC: On 1 January 2004 this program was expanded to compensate 20-year retirees of any combined percentage rating for combat-related disabilities compensated by VA. This benefit applies to any otherwise qualified members who receive Reserve retired pay (paid at age 60 based on points for Reserve participants with 20 "good" years.) To receive CRSC benefits a retiree must apply with their Branch of Service on a DD Form 2860. The service will then make the decision. The form can be downloaded at <http://www.dior.whs.mil/forms/DD2860T.pdf> or contact Jerry Lesperance. The rules for CRSC eligibility are currently under review by DOD but "combat-related" will be given a broad definition including disabilities resulting from armed conflict, special hazardous duty, training exercises that simulate war, caused by an instrumentality of war, hazardous duty, and certain exposures such as Agent Orange. The reverse side of DD Form 2860 gives more details on qualifying disabilities. CRSC payments will be tax exempt.
